Water drops in sequedad

Ángel Moreno, of Buenafuente

NEW

The author, sensitive to the lack of time of those who nevertheless wish to cultivate their spirit, offers in a structured and concise manner, thirty chapters based on some biblical texts that have had a special impact on him.

After a brief commentary, he contextualizes the passage doubly, with references to the Holy Scriptures and with quotes from spiritual teachers, to culminate with a concrete application and an open question, inviting each reader to personalize the story.

The title of the book echoes the times of drought and the benefit of water, applying the image in a perspective of hope; as happens when the dry land receives the gift of heaven and the moor becomes an orchard. The prophecy of dew and rain that soak the earth and make it germinate becomes, in the current circumstances, a propitious occasion to observe the encouraging germs inspired by the Word of God.

Ángel Moreno, from Buenafuente. Secular priest, chaplain of the Monastery of Buenafuente del Sistal and parish priest of eleven parishes, in the Province of Guadalajara. Graduate in Theology of Religious Life from the Faculty of Salamanca and doctor in Theology of Spiritual Life, from the Faculty of Theology of Northern Spain, at its headquarters in Burgos.

He is the author of numerous publications related to spiritual life from an experiential and contemplative dimension, and leads Spiritual Exercises, retreats and conferences in different dioceses.

Saint Isidoro used to say that the latin word for “hope” came from the word “foot”. Hope always refers us to the direction of the path. Virgin Mary is a good teacher to us, a fundamental model of hope. These reflections intend to follow in the footsteps of her own path. They include plans for spiritual retreats and the Spanish-language programs broadcast by Vatican Radio, “El Sembrador Radio y Televisión” (“el Señor, TV and Radio”), in Chatsworth, California, and “En Familia Radio 740” (“In family Radio 740”), in Phoenix, Arizona.

These notes try to establish a dialogue with art and poetry, which have devoted so much attention to Mary. In addition, they are followed by a prayer and some guidelines for personal reflection or for the catechesis of the different Christian groups.

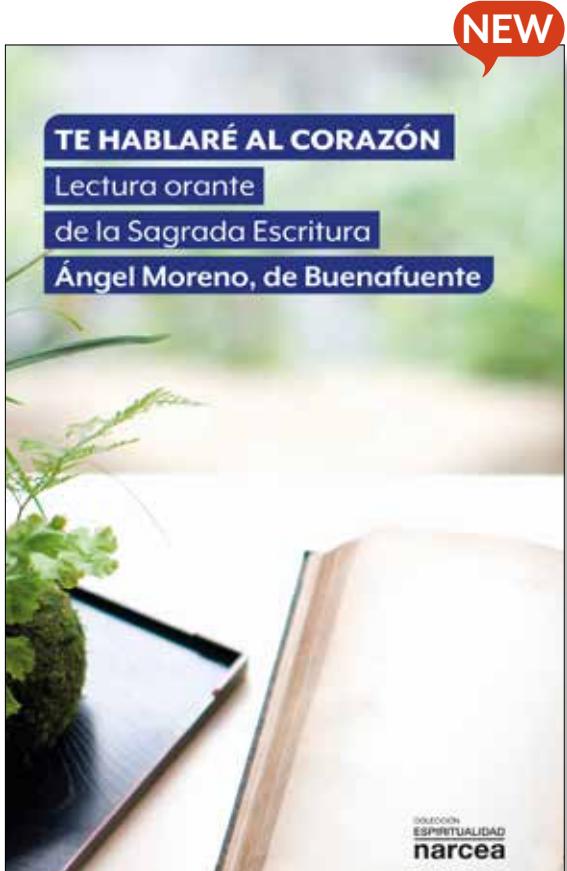

May the Virgin Mary, mother of God and our mother, walk with us

José Román Flecha Andrés is a priest at the diocese of León. He is bachelor in Philosophy from the Pontifical University of Saintomas (Angelicum), Rome, bachelor in Theology from the Gregorian University of Rome, and PhD in Moral Theology from the Alphonsian Academy. He was professor at the Center for Ecological Studies of León and at the Pontifical University of Salamanca. He has written several books and is a renowned speaker.

Prayerful reading of the Holy Scripture

This is a guidebook to help you enter the wisdom of the Word of God, and to understand the meaning of the Holy Scriptures, revealed to those who come to it barefoot, as Moses did before the burning bush.

The wisdom of three thousand years, practiced by the prayerful of all times, allows us to savor the sweet and provocative taste of divine Revelation. We must venture in the desert of the heart to listen, once our mind is quieted, the personal call of the sacred text and to become witnesses, because now we won't speak of what we've heard, we will speak of what our hands have touched: The Word of Life.

Like the seer of the Apocalypse, I invite you not only to read this book, but to delve into the believing and prayerful reading of the Bible (cf. Ap 10:9).

Ángel Moreno, of Buenafuente is a secular priest, chaplain of the Cistercian monastery of Buenafuente del Sis-tal (Guadalajara), and parish priest of the small surrounding towns. He is a specialist in Theology of Spiritual Life, and he has published many books –several of them published in this same collection– referring to spiritual life from an experiential and contemplative dimension.

This book was forged and designed in recent years, but it actually grew out during the confinement resulting from COVID-19. It is not only a reflection on the event itself and of what we could learn from it, but also a look at the underlying causes, aiming at alerting us of the urgency and seriousness of the current situation: It is late.

At the same time, the author wants to join her voice to the ones of many others, that warns us to make us aware of the urgency of undertaking deep changes to save the life on our planet and our species on it: It is our time.

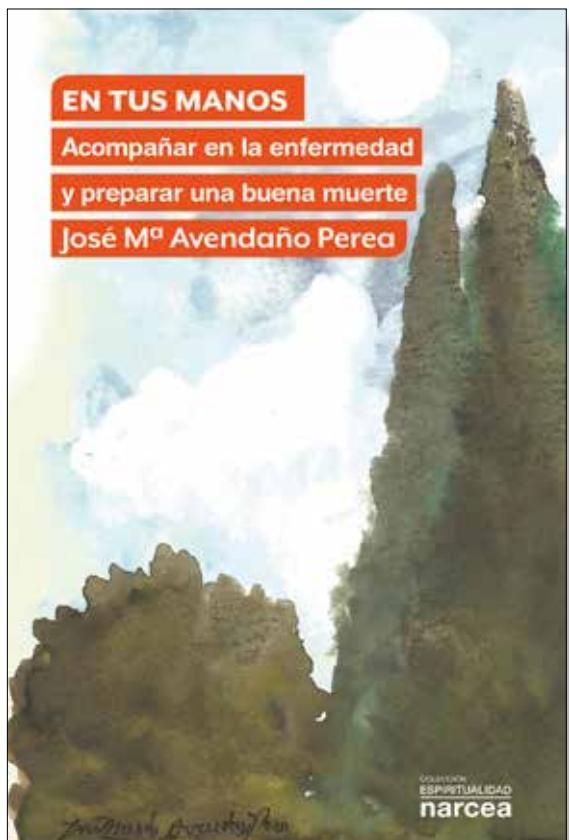

Our generation has to take responsibility. But we need to rush. We are still on time; it is still possible to undertake those changes. These pages don't express defeat; they are a voice that calls us to a proactive and engaged hope.

Emma Martínez Ocaña, is Bachelor in History and Spiritual Theology. She has worked as professor of Psychology of Religion and Integration and psycho-spiritual maturity at the Universidad Pontificia Comillas. Individual and group psychotherapist, she directs spiritual exercises and runs psycho-spiritual integration workshops. She is a member of the Theresian Association, of the Association of Spanish Theologians and of Women and Theology. She collaborates regularly with specialized magazines and is the author of five other books in this same collection.

The big things, the important things, are hidden in the small, in simplicity, in surrender. This is what the author repeats, in one way or another, in his song, because this book is a song.

These pages make us discover, through filial and believing memory, the beauty of creation and salvation embodied in a town in La Mancha, in the life of a simple, good man, an honest peasant and sincere believer, from a rural and pious family background.

Christian memories full of gratitude, depth, meaning. The story this book tells is not fantasy, it is not fiction, but a true story, the story of Cándido.

We encounter fundamental themes of our existence: life, family, suffering, death, mourning, orphanhood, accompaniment to those who suffer, etc.

The best way to accept suffering and death, to overcome grief, is to accept it, make it part of our life, commune with it with the certainty that we have won in the One who died and rose again for us.

José M<sup>a</sup> Avendaño Perea. Vicar General of the diocese of Getafe (Madrid), develops his pastoral activity with its center in the love of God and the evangelizing care of those "wounded by life." He is the author of several books on spirituality and in this one he presents the Christian life of his father Cándido, a sincere believer who learned from farming and the simple life.

A simple and suggestive book that invites us to meet Saint Pedro Poveda. Carolina Mancini offers us, as an itinerary, a rich proposal of Povedan texts illuminated by a selection of biblical texts and accompanied by a series of prayerful reflections.

Eight days with their corresponding prayer times, initially conceived for a day of retreat, although it can also be followed randomly.

A man of a rich inner life, contemplative and dynamic at the same time, Pedro Poveda was marked by a constant coming and going from the depth of his being to daily commitment, from prayerful listening to the encounter with the emerging issues of his time.

A constant feature of his multifaceted existence was spiritual accompaniment to a great diversity of people. Many times this accompaniment was epistolary, but then some of those texts were retouched and delivered by the author for publication. They reveal the deep dialogue that took place between his spiritual experience and that of his interlocutors.

In this minimal synthesis, in dialogue with the Word, there is an invitation to one's own prayer experience, the most genuine Povedan aspiration.

Carolina Mancini, Graduate in Arts and Diploma in Psychospiritual Accompaniment, has dedicated herself to teaching, accompaniment and guidance of Spiritual Exercises for young people, encouraging spaces for personal growth and integration. She is a member of the Teresian Institution and resides in Montevideo (Uruguay).

Adela Edwards Salas, 1874-1939, was born in Santiago, Chile, into an illustrious family of recognized socio-political prestige. He received excellent cultural training. Possessing exceptional qualities: a positive, cheerful and open-minded disposition and limitless generosity, she shared what she had: her ideas and her tireless work in favor of education, which crystallized in the founding of the Santa Teresa Normal School. Her overwhelming presence had surrounded her with great prestige in all the social and educational environments of her time.

Adela's life and work offer the testimony of an innate educator who knew how to understand that the education of children and young people did not only happen through the teachers, but also through the families, the neighborhood, the country... Without leaving Chile, she wove a international relations network with cutting-edge educators. The result of his experience was the publication of the book Paso a Paso, a simultaneous reading and writing method, widely disseminated in Chile. And, without boasting about feminism, she focused her work on the professionalization of women, aware that it was the most direct path to her promotion as a person.

In his maturity he learned about the Teresian Association. She was vitally in tune with the thoughts of Pedro Poveda, its founder, and joined that Institution to which he entrusted the continuity of his work: the Santa Teresa Normal School.

M<sup>a</sup> Guadalupe Pedrero Sánchez, Doctor in History, has taught at Universities of the State of Sao Paulo, Brazil: in Campinas and as a graduate at the Paulista State University (UNESP). She has participated in Congresses and Seminars of historians in different Latin American countries. Connected with the Historical Archive of the Teresian Association has contributed to the organization of the Archives of the Association in America.
